

Jason Lauritsen Program Description

What Are You Waiting For? Find the Courage to Disrupt

As the pace of change accelerates, leaders must face the reality that what we've always done isn't working any longer. Innovation is a requirement of survival. And innovation demands disruption.

Knowing disruption is needed is one thing, doing it is another. It requires an ingredient that can be hard to find: Courage. To do the work that will truly make a difference demands that you face your fears of failure and rejection and move beyond them.

In this session, we will confront the most common fears that are holding you back and replace them with the mindset and skill to find your courage.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify key mental obstacles that are holding you back from making a bigger impact
- Explore the nature of courage and how to find more to fuel your work
- Discover some key skills to equip yourself to move past your fear and accomplish breakthrough results