

Tami Evans - Biography

Productivity. Connection. Peak Performance. Top-of-mind topics most organizations want their team members to master. What is the fastest way to help them achieve this? Levity.

Wait. What? These are important topics. But tackling them doesn't mean dull, dry, or dreaded PowerPoint marathons. No. Sometimes, the best way to address big challenges is with energy and humor that keeps people engaged and nodding along. The kind that sparks an instant, "That's so me!" connection, leading to a "We can do this!" strategy that turns into a "Let's change the game!" breakthrough for an organization.

Enter Keynote Speaker, Author, and Levity Leadership Expert, Tami Evans. Known as "The Human Exclamation Point," Tami delivers high-energy keynotes packed with tools to help professionals reduce stress, amplify productivity, and build meaningful connections—all while having a lot more fun.

With over 20 years of experience, Tami has worked with powerhouse organizations like Microsoft, Raytheon, Dove Chocolate, The New York Times, and Nissan to enhance leadership skills, boost employee engagement, and drive collaboration. Her philosophy is simple: when people laugh, they listen. When they listen, they learn. And when they learn, they level up their performance.

From her roots as a corporate manager, university professor, and communications specialist to her creative stints as a professional actress and fashion designer, Tami's unique background fuels her ability to connect with diverse audiences. Add her MFA in performance and a past presidency at the National Speakers Association NYC, and you've got a speaker who's as dynamic as she is relatable.

Tami helps professionals squash stress, foster communication, and cultivate levity in leadership, proving that success doesn't have to feel heavy. Whether you're aiming for better retention, culture cohesion, or bottom-line results, Tami's "use it now" insights will leave your team inspired, empowered, and ready to Live Lighter.

Discover the lightness that leads to greatness with Tami Evans at your next event!