

Jason Harris - Introduction

PLEASE NOTE: Jason prefers that his video introduction, which was provided via email, is played in lieu of this introduction being read aloud. In the event his video introduction cannot be played, below are the words to be read by the person introducing Jason at your event.

Jason Harris learned first-hand about cultivating cultures of commitment, accountability, and trust through his military career that has spanned more than two decades. A retired Lieutenant Colonel, he's a highly sought-after keynote speaker, best-selling author, and professional pilot. He is a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy and recently retired after more than 27 years in uniformed service. Jason shares his unique combat and leadership lessons and expertise with national associations and Fortune 500 companies. His insights have been featured in numerous media outlets and publications including multiple History Channel docuseries. In his spare time, Jason enjoys cooking gourmet meals at home, traveling the world with his family, and showing that his commitment to building trust starts at home... by enjoying Daddy Daughter Donut Dates on Fridays! Here to help us learn how to empower and trust our people... like our business and our lives depend on it... please join me in welcoming best-selling author, thought leader, and donut lover... Jason Harris!
